The difference of opinion has resulted in the formation of factions termed progress ionists and anti progressionists. The former profess to see a promising future in store for Brookdale, and they believe that all future improvements should be of a pernament character in order that when the "boom" comes the property-owners will be partly prepared to receive it. In harmony with their views upper Broad street should TO LET At Gien Ridge, House of nine rooms, be graded before the proposed stone road is w. O. SAYLES, Times Building, New York commenced. The opposition declare that money spent for grading in a farming district like Brookdale is money wasted. They insist upon it that the money should be as possible regardless of grade.
